The demand for transformed public services in the Caribbean requires a more strategic approach to the development of human resources. The Government of Jamaica, as a part of its broader Public Sector Transformation Programme, is currently developing and implementing its Public Sector Learning Framework (PSLF). You are invited to hear more about this whole of government approach towards sustainable national development, and the creation of a common infrastructure to guide the strategic and systemic development of the public sector human resources.

Our presenter will be Mrs. Natasha Gordon-Miller, CLP Alumna and Director of Public Service Capability Development with the Management Institute for National Development, Jamaica.
