With the advent of the COVID-19 pandemic and the requirement for social distancing, traditional, face to face learning programmes have had to be put on hold. Many training departments and providers have had to quickly make the transition to operating in the virtual learning space. One such organisation that has succeeded in this regard is the Learning and Development Directorate for the Government of Barbados. In this webinar, we will learn from them how they approached this transition, their challenges, progress to date and lessons learnt.
